

permit strangers to come into their hills and would attack them with bows and arrows.

However, when the Chenchus learnt about Maha Periva's visit to Srisailam, a group of about one hundred of their people met with Maha Periva at Nagalooti and promised to help him travel safely through the hilly terrain.

True to their promise, the Chenchus safe-guarded Maha Periva and his entire group from wild animals, and helped move all the cargo over the hills.

Though financially poor, they refused to accept any money for their services.

The Chenchus had a tradition of entertaining their respected visitors with tribal dances. They expressed a desire to perform before Maha Periva and sought his permission.

Though the mutt officials were not happy at this request from the Chenchus, Maha Periva who was always kind to his devotees, graciously agreed watch the Chenchus dance.

The Chenchus were very pleased at this gesture and danced beautifully as per their tradition. Maha Periva too was happy, provided food to them, gave them vibhuti prasadam and blessed them.

Hyderabad State Welcome

Crossing over the Tungabhadra River in Kurnool, Maha Periva moved through Jallapuram, Ananthapuram and reached the town of Katwal.

In those days, Katwal was a small territory within the State of Hyderabad ruled by Nizam. Katwal was ruled by a queen. On entering Katwal, Maha Periva was received by the queen of Katwal with royal honors.

After a stay of four days in Katwal, Maha Periva traveled
